Uniform Guidance – Healthcare Scientists, Vascular Science

The adoption of the NHS Healthcare Uniform is a trust-led decision. The CSVS state that if the NHS Healthcare Uniform is implemented within a Trust, any clinical staff working in Vascular Science should adopt the Healthcare Science Professions uniform as the most appropriate option, and should not wear NHS Healthcare Uniform of a different profession category to prevent misrepresentation of the role and competency.

The NHS Healthcare Uniform is aimed at transforming the approach to uniform provision across NHS trusts in England. The framework delivers exceptional value for money, enhanced sustainability, improved professional image, and fosters an inclusive culture in which everybody feels seen, respected, and valued. The scope of this project covers professionals working within clinical roles, equating to approximately 600,000 wearers, including Allied Health Professions, Healthcare Sciences, Nursing, Midwifery and Pharmacy. Carefully curated, the colourways were chosen in conjunction with NHS England and healthcare professional bodies to provide a coherent and recognisable visual system across trusts who choose to implement the NHS Healthcare Uniform at the end of their current uniform cycle.
